War In Finland

The Russo-Finnish war went into its fifth week with both nations fighting more furiously than ever. The Russians got nowhere in their campaign on the Karelian Isthmus in the southern part of Finland so they made an attack on Finland's middle section. Striking at the point where the Finnish territory is narrowest, the Soviets succeeded in making a drive deep into the Finn's "wasp waist." In fact, the Reds nearly cut Finland in two.

At this point, however, the Finnish forces rallied themselves and began a counter-attack which checked the Russian advance completely. The next day a howling blizzard began blowing toward the Russian trenches, cutting the Reds off from their source of supplies. Instantly, the Finns ook this opportunity to advance. They advanced hastily-before the Russians could prepare themselves-and they drove the invaders clear back to the bord-

The Colonel Makes A Few Resolutions

Yesterday the Colonel heard a student griping about having to make New Year's resolutions. "They're downright silly," the boy said.

This wounded the Colonel severely. He, who has always loved New Year's resolutions with a passion known only to Kentucky Colonels, has become very attached to this great American institution. Give up New Year's resolutions? he asks. Why you might as well give up Thanksgiving and the Fourth of July!

The Old Boy has just finished this year's list of rulings, and they reveal such a touching spirit of self-sacrifice on his part that he is rather proud of them. In fact he has decided to make them public. He lists them, with the proper reservations of course, as follows:

(1) He will give up the imbibing of mint juleps (except at family reunions, anniversaries, special celebrations, and on week-ends.)

(2) He will relinquish his beloved habit of betting on horse races (to go into effect as soon as the Keeneland meet is over. Derby Day won't

(3) He will cease the attendance of dances (that is, as soon as this year's series of formals is ended.)

(4) He will smoke no more six-inch cigars (he's cutting down to five-inchers after this.)

(5) He unconditionally will give up his proposed trip to Finland. (6) He positively will not attend any football he wishes he hadn't committed himself. "However," he announces, "I have given my word, and the word of a Kentucky gentleman is bond, suh. I shall carry out my obligations to the letter.

Again he said: Just the same, they'll poke fun and say what a momentous subject for an editorial. They won't pay any attention to it. What can you possibly say that's new?

Then I said: Nothing new, but nevertheless important. I'll tell them with plain, cold facts that making paths across the campus in itself is not as important as the attitude of slovenliness, stupidity, and distorted self-satisfaction which such action reflects. I'll tell them that we have more paths now than in 1925 when the campus was almost devoid of walks and it was possible to tramp over wide open spaces. I'll tell them that since 1936 the Department of Buildings and Grounds has unceasingly constructed new, wide walks wherever needed and a large WPA appropriation this year will help further the work. I'll remind them that we may be able to whip other colleges of the state in bring it up again and now? I still don't believe they will take it-the factual editorial-straight

And I said: Without consulting my tea leaves, I know that the thaw will soon come. And with that thaw a return to the perennial practice. I also know that paths made across the soggy campus at that time will be most enduring, everlasting and unsightly. As for taking it, the students, not to mention some offending faculty members, are "grown men and women" now and they might as well begin to condition their delicate natures to a few kicks.

He said: Well, I still am in doubt, but I hope you're right.

I said: I fervently hope so, too.

Brilliant Mosaic Of School Seal Tops Building

By MARTIN FREEDMAN

High atop the new Biologic Sciences building, a multi-colored mosaic of the University seal reflects the light of the sun and sparkles brilliantly when the moon is full. You can see this mosaic from the library or from the steps of the law building because it is seven feet across and its border is of metallic gold. The figures and silhouettes are black against a background of blue and white. In the center of the mosaic are

Calling 'Em

By JOE CREASON

May I take it all back?

I was wrong, awfully wrong, and right now I'm visited with regrets of the Mrs. Otis type for picking Tennessee to footballically massage Southern California in the Rose Bowl game, Pasadena's version of the pot of gold.

Against a Trojan team that was as worked up as a Negro evangelist, the terrible Vols were about as ferocious as a covey of humming birds. But so strongly did I think the moon would go down and the sun would come up before any team scored on Tennessee that I battle. As yet teams have not been regular cage sport. Bill Boston and was daring enough to wager a movie lots, saw a bevy of beautiful farthing on the outcome of the gals and plenty of football. New Year's Day bout.

Except for a brief rebellion early might be looking at these matters in the final quarter that moved through the specs of partiality. the leather 83 yards before a fumble extinguished the threat, Tennessee Heading the team of coaches who will shoot at the faculty will be looked more like the change from a quarter than what the team expects had touted as the faculty will be perts had touted as one of the greatest college elevens ever conscripted.

Playing, as they had, a schedule that reads like whistle stops on a branch line out of Knoxville, the Vols were not prepared to handle a team of U.S.C. calibre. They found opposition that was just a little harder and were more hungry for a win. The Trojans were big, fast and sure; and there was one h-l of a lot of 'em. Each substitute was as good as the man replaced, maybe better.

Get Paid Well To Lose

But even in defeat the Vols rolled up money faster than a streamlined counterfeiting machine. As its share of the loot contributed by the 93,000 cash customers, Tennessee pocketed something around $110,000. That—if my fifth grade mathematics is still clicking amounts to about $1,833.33 per minute or $30.55 per second the length of the game. At that rate the Vols coined at least $200 every time they took extra time in a huddle.

While he undoubtedly had more members of the varsity squad were Members who were present at left in Knoxville to take part in

Possible Solution

However, one is prone to wonder if the grid step-chillun could have made any difference in the game unless they had been allowed to enter the game en masse as a committee to investigate conditions in the Trojan backfield. One reason for slapping the padlocks on the bank roll might have been that Major Neyland isn't "Chili lunch for a chilly day" is looking for any more juicy post-the theme of the meeting of the season parties in the near future— Dutch Lunch Club at noon today so he figured he'd better make hay > Trojans Rip Line To Shreds The most glaring feature brought to light by the game was the fact that either the Tennessee line was anything but the Gibraltar critics had worded it to be or they were far off form. Pre-game press notices reported that the Vols were in poor physical condition with the trainers using more tape than a stock market ticker in covering up their wounds. The Tennessee ends, the tion of Teachers of Speech. rail-birds said, couldn't stop a nose bleed, but the guard, tackle and center spots were supposedly as secure as the Bank of England.

Save for Bob Suffridge, the Vol linemen were completely outclassed. The Trojan line was literally teeming with unheralded players without a press clipping to their names that could have spotted the Tennessee invincibles a first down and still licked them. Too many of the Tennessee All-Americans, like Ed Molinski and George Caffego, the cleted terror, spent too much of
